PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

Welcome Home

This Home is a version of the historic Salt Box.

What is a saltbox house? It is a Colonial style of architecture which originated in New England. Saltboxes are frame houses with two stories, having a pitched roof with unequal sides, being short and high in front and long and low in back. The front of the house is flat and the rear roof line is steeply sloped. The sturdy central chimney is a simple but effective focal point. The simplicity and strength of this design, first seen around 1650, continues to make saltbox houses popular today. Although it is simple in design, it is quite refreshing. No frills and economical to heat.

The inside of this house is an urban loft style design that you will see in the trendy city apartments. The open loft style was designed to use your own Unique Furniture and creative muses for storage and design. You are looking at a historical salt box design with a trendy touch with the urban loft feel. If you are looking for conventional type housing this may not be for you. However, if you want to get your creative muses flowing take a look and try and feel what you can do to make this an exciting living space.

Cabin type home in the woods. Small, environmental and affordable to heat. Make time to look at the natural surroundings outside. The yard was left in mostly its natural state to invite the owls, woodpecker and the deer. This is great country living with conveniences to services, transportation, schools and the city and the greater Kitsap area.
